Top-tier production studios and collaborative workspaces rival the views from the windows of High 5 Games, a major player in the casino gaming and technology field. The company's two-floor office and production facility at 1 World Trade Center in Lower Manhattan fuses natural light and stunning vistas with wood, metal, and colorful accents to promote creativity.

Top: Custom live edge walnut top, Highline open loop leg, center technology trough with microphone access for each seat. The table top was crafted from four slabs hewn from the same walnut tree, then book-matched from the center of the table to produce mirror images for maximum visual impact. The client wanted to see variations in grain and character; the original specification called for "reclaimed" wood.
